Paula Oliver RGN BSc (Hons) MSc INP
Paula Oliver qualified as a registered nurse in 1979 at The Royal Devon and Exeter hospital and has worked over the years in hospitals and in the primary care setting as a District Nurse in the primary care setting. In her previous role Paula was the lead Clinical Nurse Specialist for a busy dermatology outpatient department and developed many nurse led initiatives, such as:

- Phototherapy
- Complex Leg ulcer clinics
- Minor dermatological surgery
- Systemic monitoring clinics
- Photodynamic therapy (PDT) service
- Patch testing

In 2005 Paula took up a new challenge and is now working for a pharmaceutical company Galderma (UK) Ltd that is dedicated to dermatology. Her role as Nurse Consultant is primarily as an educator in dermatological diseases’ and its management for all health care professionals (HCP). Paula is passionate about dermatology as a specialism and strongly believes the important role that HCP have to empower their patients to manage their skin disease. Paula also maintains a weekly honorary contract with Brighton and Sussex University Hospitals NHS Trust to continue her clinical practice, by caring for patients with dermatological diseases and maintaining her dermatology nursing and prescribing skills. She is currently an active member of the British Dermatology Nursing Group. Paula has published several articles relating to dermatological conditions and has completed a Master of Science in Clinical Studies plus Education at University Of Brighton.

Nicki Ball RGN BSc
Nicki qualified as a nurse in 1991 after training in the Queen Alexandra’s Royal Navy Nursing Service (QARNNS.) She was drafted to work in the dermatology outpatients department at RNH Haslar in 1994 and has been a dermatology nurse ever since. After leaving the Navy, Nicki set up a dermatology nurse service at Stoke Mandeville Hospital where she initiated light treatment clinics, nurse led review clinics and nurse led minor surgery clinics. After moving to Bristol, Nicki’s role was as the Dermatology Outpatient Manager at the Bristol Royal Infirmary working with a large team of Consultants, Registrars and Nurses delivering a wide range of dermatology clinics.

In 2005 Nicki moved out of the secondary care setting into primary care, working as an out of hours community nurse. In 2008, she took over the lead nurse role in the Primary Care Dermatology Service and was tasked with rolling out the commissioned service across Bristol. All dermatology conditions are seen including eczema, psoriasis, acne, rosacea and non-melanoma skin cancer. The team were awarded the BDNG Team of the Year in 2011.

In the last two years, Nicki has been worked as a research nurse on a large eczema study at Bristol University and then joined Ashfield Healthcare to work as a dermatology nurse advisor. She has completed her BSc in Professional Practice (Foundations in Dermatology) with the University of Stirling and now works full time for Galderma (UK) as a dermatology nurse specialist. Nicki is passionate about dermatology nursing and improving the lives of patients with chronic skin conditions, particularly through educating other health care professionals.
